The writer is of the opinion that the development of the country is in a very ironic situation while the pockets of the private prosperity are growing the resource of public sphere are depleting, thus though we have an amazing variety of sleek new car models to choose from the roads in our cities are in pretty bad shape and getting worse. Fashionable luxury resorts are mushrooming everywhere but the lung spacess like parks and playgrounds are shrinking. It is a similar story with many other services in the public domain including transportation, health ,education even the essential services into the private realm so that some company or the other can make profit on them . It is indeed a tragic comedy because the poor are pushed into becoming consumers of increasingly expressive goods and utility.
